

It was Halloween night, and a young witch named Luna was getting ready to fly across the moon. She packed her magic hat, a glowing lantern, and a bag of colorful candy. But when she walked outside, she gasped.

"My broom is gone!"

Luna searched behind the pumpkin patch, inside the old barn, and near the spooky forest. She even asked a friendly black cat if it had seen her broom.

Just then, Luna heard a tiny giggle. A playful ghost floated down from a tree branch.

"I borrowed your broom," the ghost admitted.
"I wanted to practice flying!"

Luna smiled instead of getting angry. The ghost quickly returned the broom and said sorry.

Together, they flew over the village, dropped candy for children, and watched fireworks sparkle in the sky. Luna was happy because Halloween was even more fun with a new friend.
