A WALK THROUGH THE FALL FOREST

On a cool fall morning, Emma and her brother Noah went for a walk in the forest with their grandfather. The trees were covered with bright red, orange, and yellow leaves. A gentle breeze made the leaves dance through the air.

As they walked, they collected colorful leaves to make a nature collage. They also found acorns, pinecones, and small pumpkins at a nearby farm stand. A squirrel quickly ran up a tree carrying an acorn, getting ready for winter.

Grandfather explained that many trees lose their leaves in the fall because the weather becomes colder. Birds begin flying south, and some animals prepare for the winter months by gathering food.

Before going home, the family enjoyed warm apple cider and watched the sunset paint the sky with beautiful colors. Emma smiled and said, "Fall is my favorite season because every day feels like a new adventure."
